Airplanes, the Environment, and the Human Condition

Hans A. Baer

This book examines the aviation industry from an anthropological perspective, focussing on the sector's environmental impact and the challenges facing attempts to shift to more sustainable solutions. Baer outlines how airplanes have become a key component of modern cultural and social life, and how the world system has become increasingly dependent on them to function. He critically examines current attempts to mitigate the climatic impact of the air travel, argues for a fundamental shift away from air transport, and suggests that such a shift may only be achieved through a more fundamental shift in the world system.

2nd Edition

Dynamics of Human Biocultural Diversity

A Unified Approach

Elisa J. Sobo, San Diego State University

This lively text by leading medical anthropologist Elisa Sobo offers a unique, holistic approach to human diversity and rises to the challenge of truly integrating biology and culture. In this second edition the material has been updated to reflect changes in both the scientific and socio-cultural landscape, for example in relation to topics such as the microbiome and transgender. Readers learn to conceptualize human biology and culture concurrently—as an adaptive biocultural capacity that has helped to produce the rich range of human diversity seen today.

On Insignificance

The Loss of Meaning in the Post-Material Age

Massimo Leone, University of Turin, Italy

Focussing on the anthropological consequences of the disappearing of materiality and sensory embodiment, On Insignificance highlights some of the most perturbing patterns of insignificance that have seeped into our everyday lives. Seeking to explain the semiotic causes of feelings of meaningless, Leone posits that caring for the singularities of the world is the most viable way to resist the alienating effects of the digital bureaucratization of meaning. The book will be of interest to scholars of anthropology, cultural studies, semiotics, aesthetics, communication studies and social theory.

The Angry Earth

Disaster in Anthropological Perspective

Edited by Anthony Oliver-Smith and Susanna M. Hoffman

The Angry Earth explores how various cultures in different historical moments have responded to calamity. Through case studies drawn from around the globe the contributors to this volume examine issues ranging from the social and political factors that set the stage for disaster, to the cultural processes experienced by survivors, to the long-term impact of disasters on culture and society. In the second edition, each chapter has been updated with a postscript to reflect on recent developments in the field. There is also new material on key present-day topics including epidemics, drought, non-governmental organizations, and displacement and resettlement.

The Promise of Contemporary Primatology

Erin P. Riley, San Diego State University, USA

Series edited by Agustin Fuentes

Series: New Biological Anthropology

This book argues for a contemporary primatology that recognizes humans as integral components in the ecologies of primates. This contemporary primatology uses a broadened theoretical lens and methodological toolkit to study primate behavior and ecology in increasingly anthropogenic contexts and seeks points of intersection and spaces for collaborative exchange across the natural sciences, social sciences, and humanities. An important interdisciplinary reassessment, this book will be of significant interest to primatologists, biological anthropologists, and scholars of anthropology more generally, as well as evolutionary and conservation biologists.

Understanding Tuberculosis and its Control

Anthropological and Ethnographic Approaches

Edited by Helen Macdonald and Ian Harper

Drawing on ethnographic case studies from around the world, the volume considers: the relationship between global and national policies and their unintended effects; the emergence and impact of introducing new diagnostics; the reliance on and use of statistical numbers for representing tuberculosis and the politics of this; the impact of the disease on health workers as well as patients; the rise of drug resistant forms and issues of attempted control. Together the examples showcase the value of an anthropological understanding to demonstrate the broader bio-political and social dimensions of tuberculosis and attempts to deal with it.

Economies of Destruction

How the systematic destruction of valuables created value in Bronze Age Europe, c. 2300-500 BC

David Fontijn

Why do people destroy objects and materials that are important to them? This book aims to make sense of this fascinating, yet puzzling social practice by focusing on a period in history in which such destructive behavior reached unseen heights and complexity: the Bronze Age and Early Iron Age in Europe (c. 2300-500 BC). Using theories from economic anthropology, it argues that –paradoxically– giving up that which was valuable created value. This book will be invaluable to scholars and archaeologists interested in the Bronze Age, ancient economies, and a new angle on metalwork depositions. It seems that to achieve something in society, something else must be given up.

Trafficking Culture

New Directions in Researching the Global Market in Illicit Antiquities

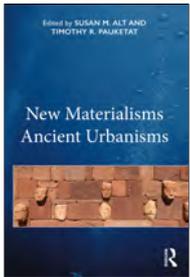

Simon Mackenzie, Scottish Centre for Crime & Justice Research, University of Glasgow, UK, Neil Brodie, Donna Yates and Christos Tsirogiannis

Trafficking Culture outlines current research and thinking on the illicit market in antiquities. It moves along the global trafficking chain from 'source' to 'market', identifying the main roles and routines involved. Using original research, the authors explore the dynamics of this 'grey' market, where legal and illegal goods are mixed and conflated. It compares and contrasts this illicit trade with other 'transnational criminal markets', such as the illegal trades in drugs, wildlife, conflict diamonds, timber, human trafficking, and counterfeits, and provides a series of propositions about practical crime reduction measures for the future.

New Materialisms Ancient Urbanisms

Edited by Susan M. Alt and Timothy R. Pauketat

The ten authors of New Materialisms Ancient Urbanisms seek less anthropocentric answers to questions about the historical relationships between urbanism and humanity in Africa, Asia, and the Americas. They analyze the movements and flows of materials, things, phenomena, and beings—human and otherwise—as these were assembled to produce the kinds of complex, dense, and stratified relationships that we today label urban. In so doing, the book emerges as a work of both theory and historical anthropology. It breaks new ground in the archaeology of urbanism, building on the latest 'New Materialist', 'relational-ontological', and 'realist' trends in social theory.

Northern Archaeology and Cosmology

A Relational View

Vesa-Pekka Herva and Antti Lahelma

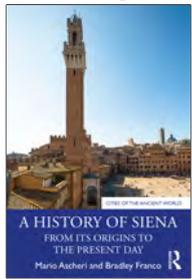

In its analysis of the archaeologies and histories of the northern fringe of Europe, this book provides a focus on animistic-shamanistic cosmologies and the associated human-environment relations from the Neolithic to modern times. The North has fascinated Europeans throughout history, as an enchanted world of natural and supernatural marvels: a land of light and dark, of northern lights and the midnight sun, of witches and magic, and of riches ranging from amber to oil. This book examines the mythical and actual northern worlds, with northern relational modes of perceiving and engaging with the world on the one hand and the 'place' of the North in European culture on the other.

A History of Siena

From its Origins to the Present Day

Mario Ascheri and Bradley Franco

Series: Cities of the Ancient World

A History of Siena provides a concise and up-to-date biography of the city, from its medieval development through to the present day, and makes Siena's history, culture and traditions accessible to anyone studying or visiting the city. Well-informed by archival research and recent scholarship on medieval Siena and the Italian city-states, this book places Siena's development in its larger context, both temporally and geographically. In the process, this book offers new interpretations of Siena's artistic, political, and economic development, highlighting in particular the role of pilgrimage, banking, and class conflict.

Ancient Fairy and Folk Tales

An Anthology

Graham Anderson

This anthology explores the multitude of evidence for recognisable fairy tales drawn from sources in the much older cultures of the ancient world, appearing much earlier than the 17th century where awareness of most fairy tales tends to begin.

This volume breaks down the traditional barriers between Classical Mythology and the fairy tale, and will be an invaluable resource for anyone working on the history of fairy tales and folklore.

An Economic History of West Africa

A. G. Hopkins, University of Cambridge

This pioneering and celebrated work was the first, and remains the standard, account of the economic history of the huge area known as West Africa. This edition contains a substantial new Introduction that discusses the development of the subject in the past 50 years, evaluates the debate over the original interpretation, and provides a valuable guide to further reading. Appearing at a time when African economic history is enjoying a revival and engaging economists as well as historians, it fills a large gap in African studies, provides newcomers with a stimulating point of entry into the subject, and contributes to our understanding of wider issues of global underdevelopment.

Knowledge and the Early Modern City

A History of Entanglements

Edited by Bert De Munck, University of Antwerp, Belgium and Antonella Romano
Series: Knowledge Societies in History

Knowledge and the Early Modern City uses case studies from the sixteenth to the eighteenth centuries to examine the relationships between knowledge and the city and how these changed in a period when the nature and conception of both was drastically transformed. The book highlights how new forms of knowledge and conceptions of the urban co-emerged in highly contingent practices. Providing the ideal starting point to understand the role of urban institutions, actors and spaces in the production of knowledge and the development of the so-called 'modern' knowledge society, this is the perfect resource for students and scholars of early modern history and knowledge.

Latin American Soldiers

Armed Forces in the Region's History

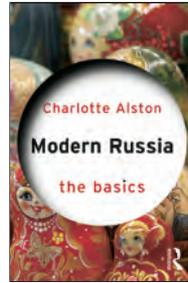

John R. Bawden
Series: Latin American Topics

In this accessible volume, John R. Bawden examines soldiers and warfare in Latin American history to introduce readers to Latin American history. Designed as introductory text for undergraduates, the book will compare and contrast the military histories of four countries- Brazil, Chile, Cuba, and Guatemala- to contextualize major events, eras, and problems. Latin America has faced many of the challenges common to postcolonial states: civil war, poorly-defined borders, politically fractured societies, and dependent economies. Studying the military and its soldiers is a route to understanding the developing world and its relationship to the broader global community.

The Holocaust: The Basics

Paul R. Bartrop, Florida Gulf Coast University, USA

Series: The Basics

The Holocaust: The Basics is a concise introduction to the study of this seismic event in mid twentieth-century human history. The book takes an original approach as both a narrative and thematic introduction to the topic, and provides a core foundation for readers embarking upon their own study. Supported by a chronology, glossary, questions for discussion and boxed case studies that focus the reader's thoughts and develop their appreciation of the subjects considered more broadly, The Holocaust: The Basics is the ideal introduction to this controversial and widely-debated topic for both students and the more general reader.

The War on Drugs in the Americas

Christopher M. White, Marshall University, USA

Over the past century, the war against illegal drugs has reshaped both the United States and Latin American societies. Throughout that time, the legitimacy of this drug war has also been fiercely debated. This concise and accessible book brings together the history of the drug war in the U.S. and Latin America in a single volume, showing how the war has been a single phenomenon across the hemisphere. From the late 19th and early 20th century to the present, The Drug War in the Americas offers a clear and objective narrative that enables students to understand the origins, impact, and debates behind the War on Drugs.

American English Grammar

An Introduction

Seth R. Katz

American English Grammar introduces students to American English in detail, from parts-of-speech, phrases, and clauses to punctuation and explaining (and debunking) numerous "rules of correctness," integrating its discussion of Standard American grammar with thorough coverage of the past sixty years' work on African American English and other ethnic and regional non-Standard varieties. American English Grammar will serve as a classroom text or reference grammar that teaches students how to think and talk not only about the mechanics of sentences, but about the deep and detailed soul and nuance of the most widely used language in human history.

Translation and Translanguaging

Mike Baynham and Tong King Lee, University of Hong Kong, China

Series edited by Michael Cronin

Series: New Perspectives in Translation and Interpreting Studies

This book is the first to ask, what can translanguaging tell us about translation and what can translation tell us about translanguaging? In exploring these questions through analysis of data, drawn both from everyday life and literary texts, Baynham and Lee show the importance of translation and translanguaging for our general understanding of language and communication. They conclude that translation and translanguaging is a core process in languages and not just a peripheral border phenomenon. This timely book will be essential reading for students and researchers in translation studies, sociolinguistics, applied linguistics and related areas.

Writing for Engineering and Science Students

Staking Your Claim

Gerald Rau

Drawing on his extensive experience of teaching international students, Gerald A. Rau provides a clear "argument structure" for students to follow when undertaking both academic and technical writing. This is the first book to make clear the different structures required for engineering versus scientific articles. Tasks and exercises are provided throughout. Using the research article as a model and covering lab reports, research proposals, dissertations, poster presentations, industry reports, emails and job applications, this book is essential reading for all students of science and engineering who are taking a course in writing, or seeking a resource to aid in their writing assignments.

Translation and Creativity

Kirsten Malmkjær, Leicester University, UK

Translators are generally not considered to be creative artists. In this book, Kirsten Malmkjær argues that translating can and should be considered a valuable art form. Examining notions of creativity and their relationship with translation and focusing on how the originality of translation is manifest in texts, the author examines a range of texts and their translations, in order to illustrate original as opposed to derivative translation. Overall, she proposes a complete rethinking of the concepts of creativity and originality, as applied to translation. This is vital reading for advanced students and researchers in translation studies and comparative literature.

Before Literature

The Nature of Narrative Without the Written Word

Sheila J. Nayar

Before Literature examines storytelling when a narrative has not been shaped nor influenced by alphabetic literacy. How does a story unfold when it could not be written down or externally stored? What structural and stylistic pressures are imposed when it has to travel exclusively by word of mouth? This clear and accessible guide offers a fundamentally different way of thinking about narrative, but also discloses the "what" and "why" of literature, leading to a much deeper overall understanding and appreciation of its significance.

How to Read a Diary

Critical Contexts and Interpretive Strategies for 21st-Century Readers

Desirée Henderson

How to Read a Diary is an accessible and enjoyable introduction to reading diaries. Diaries are increasingly forming a large part of literary studies due to three major trends which the book responds to:

the rise of autobiography, memoir, and life writing courses, the growing emphasis across literary fields on studying non-traditional, archival, and manuscript materials, the fact that, in recent years, a large number of diaries have been published in print and digital formats, making them available for classroom use for the first time.

Duchamp, Aesthetics and Capitalism

Julian Jason Haladyn, OCAD University

Series: Routledge Focus on Art History and Visual Studies

This book is a significant re-thinking of Duchamp's importance in the twenty-first century, taking seriously the readymade as a critical exploration of object-oriented relations under the conditions of consumer capitalism.

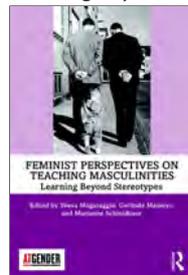

The readymade is understood as an act of accelerating art as a discourse, of pushing to the point of excess the philosophical precepts of modern aesthetics on which the notion of art in modernity is based. Julian Haladyn argues for an accelerated Duchamp that speaks to a contemporary condition of art within our era of globalized capitalist production.

Media Accountability in the Era of Post-Truth Politics

European Challenges and Perspectives

Edited by Tobias Eberwein, Susanne Fengler and Matthias Karmasin

Series: Routledge Studies in European Communication Research and Education

This book addresses the pressing need to re-evaluate and redefine the notion of accountability in the fast-changing field of journalism and "information provision". Using comparative research and empirical data, the book's case studies address the notion of media accountability from various perspectives, considering political and societal change, economic, organisational and technological factors, and the changing role of media audiences. By collecting and juxtaposing these studies, the book provides a new discussion for the old question of how we can safeguard free and responsible media in Europe – a question that seems more urgent than ever.

Public Relations, Society and the Generative Power of History

Edited by Ian Somerville, University of Ulster, UK, Lee Edwards and Øyvind Ihlen

Public Relations, Society and the Generative Power of History examines how histories are used to explore how the past is constructed from the present; how the present is always historical; and how both past and present can power imagined futures. Featuring contributions from leading academics, this book challenges traditional PR historiography and contests the 'lessons' derived from existing literature to address the implications of key areas of critically engaged PR theory. This volume is a valuable teaching resource for upper level undergraduates and postgraduates studying public relations, strategic communications, political communication and organisational communication.

Digital Sampling

The Design and Use of Music Technologies

Paul Harkins

Digital Sampling is the first book about the design and use of sampling technologies that have shaped the sounds of popular music since the 1980s. The book begins with an exploration of the Fairlight CMI and focuses on E-Mu Systems and the use of its keyboards and drum machines in hip-hop. The second half follows users across a range of musical worlds, including US/UK garage, indie folk music, and electronic music made in sewers, war zones, and crematoriums. A new and alternative approach to the study of sampling and crucial reading for students and academics from a wide range of disciplines, including music technology, media, communication, and cultural studies.

Notes Become Music

A Guidebook from the Viennese Piano Tradition

Walter Fleischmann, University of Music and Performing Arts, Vienna and Robert J. Crow

Notes Become Music: A Guidebook from the Viennese Piano Tradition addresses the many unwritten nuances of dynamics, articulation, and agogics as an expression of fundamental principles of a common European musical language. It treats the score as an incomplete musical shorthand that outlines the compositional and interpretive imperatives implicit within it, drawing on historical records from the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries and detailed comparisons of works to underline the author's presentation of Viennese tradition.

Practicing Music by Design

Historic Virtuosi on Peak Performance

Christopher Berg, University of South Carolina, USA

Practicing Music by Design: Historic Virtuosi on Peak Performance explores pedagogical practices for achieving expert skill in performance. It is an account of the relationship between historic practices and modern research, examining the defining characteristics and applications of eight common components of practice from the perspectives of performing artists, master teachers, and scientists. The author presents research past and present designed to help musicians understand the abstract principles behind the concepts. After studying Practicing Music by Design, students and performers will be able to identify areas in their practice that prevent them from developing.

Music in the Role-Playing Game

Heroes & Harmonies

Edited by William Gibbons, Texas Christian University, USA and Steven Reale, Youngstown State University, USA

Series: Routledge Music and Screen Media Series

Music in the Role-Playing Game: Heroes & Harmonies offers the first scholarly approach focusing on music in the broad class of video games known as role-playing games, or RPGs. Known for their narrative sophistication and long playtimes, RPGs have long been celebrated by players for the quality of their cinematic musical scores, which have taken on a life of their own, drawing large audiences to live orchestral performances. The chapters in this volume address the role of music in popular RPGs such as Final Fantasy and World of Warcraft, delving into how music interacts with the gaming environment to shape players' perceptions and engagement.

A History of the Symphony

The Grand Genre

Jeffrey Langford, Manhattan School of Music, USA

A History of the Symphony: The Grand Genre identifies the underlying cultural factors that have shaped the symphony over the past three hundred years, presenting a unified view of the entire history of the genre. The text goes beyond discussions of individual composers and the stylistic evolution of the genre to address what constitutes a symphony within each historical period, describing how such works fit into the lives of composers and audiences of the time, recognizing that they do not exist in a vacuum but rather as the products of numerous external forces spurring their creation.

3rd Edition

Doing Environmental Ethics

Robert Traer

Doing Environmental Ethics focuses on the personal and collective choices we have to mitigate our environmental crisis, the ethical reasoning that supports these choices, and the heart-felt convictions that can inspire us when consequential reasoning predicts it is too late to save our world. This book confronts the economic corruption and outrageous wealth disparity causing environmental catastrophe, and calls us to make courageous choices. We must transform our extractive, linear economy into a generative, circular economy. It is not enough to recycle; we must upcycle. We can adapt and learn to live within the constraints of the Earth's biosphere, and we should.

Philosophy of Human Rights

A Systematic Introduction

Anat Biletzki

This book provides an innovative, systematic introduction to the concepts, ideas, and theories of human rights. It examines the principal philosophical issues that arise in specific areas of rights, such as women's rights, minority rights, or disability rights, and addresses the human rights aspects of world problems such as global poverty and humanitarian intervention. Along with the presentation of these established subjects, the book provides a vibrant critique of both the liberal fundamentals of human rights and the legal and political aspects of the practices of individuals and organizations.

Leibniz

Nicholas Jolley

Series: The Routledge Philosophers

Gottfried Wilhelm Leibniz (1646-1716) was hailed by Bertrand Russell as 'one of the supreme intellects of all time'. A towering figure in seventeenth-century philosophy, his complex thought has been championed and satirized in equal measure, most famously in Voltaire's Candide.

In this outstanding introduction to his philosophy, Nicholas Jolley introduces and assesses the whole of Leibniz's philosophy. This second edition has been revised throughout and includes a new chapter on Leibniz and philosophy of language.

Relativism

Maria Baghramian, University College Dublin, Ireland and Annalisa Coliva, University of Modena, Italy

Series: New Problems of Philosophy

'It's all relative'. In a world of increasing cultural diversity, it can seem that everything is indeed relative. But should we concede that there is no such thing as right and wrong, and no objective truth? Can we reconcile relativism and pluralism? How many relativisms are there, and can they be united in a common framework?

Relativism explores these important questions and many more. Including chapter summaries, suggestions for further reading and a glossary, it is essential reading for students of philosophy as well as those in related disciplines where relativism is studied, such as anthropology, sociology and politics.

Merleau-Ponty

Taylor Carman, Columbia University, USA

Series: The Routledge Philosophers

Merleau-Ponty was one of the most important philosophers of the twentieth century. In this comprehensive introduction, Taylor Carman explains and assesses the full range of Merleau-Ponty's philosophy.

The 2nd edition makes use of the new translation of Phenomenology of Perception, highlighting its critique of "objective thought" and the account of constrained freedom that Merleau-Ponty advanced as a foil to Sartre's notion of radical choice.

Including further reading and a glossary, it is an ideal introduction to Merleau-Ponty, and essential reading for students of

The Old Testament

A Concise Introduction

Brent A. Strawn

This concise volume introduces readers to the three main sections of the Hebrew Bible (Tanakh) and to the biblical books found in each. It is organized around two primary "stories": the story that scholars tell about the Old Testament and the story the literature itself tells. Concluding with a reconsideration of the Old Testament as more like poetry than a story, three main chapters cover the Pentateuch, the Prophets, and the Writings. With key summaries of what the parts of the Old Testament "are all about," and including suggestions for further reading, this volume is an ideal introduction for students of and newcomers to the Old Testament.

Dance, Modernism, and Modernity

Ramsay Burt, De Montfort University, UK and Michael Huxley, De Montfort University, UK

This collection of new essays explores connections between dance, modernism, and modernity, by examining the way in which leading dancers have responded to modernity, including within the contexts of natural dancing and transnationalism. This collection asks questions about how, in these places and times, dancing developed and responded to the experience of living in modern times, or even came out of an ambivalence about or a reaction against it. Ideal for students and practitioners of dance and those interested in new modernist studies, Dance, Modernism, and Modernity considers the development of modernism in dance as an interdisciplinary and global phenomenon.

In the Long Run

A Cultural History of Broadway's Hit Plays

Jordan Schildcrout

In the Long Run: A Cultural History of Broadway's Hit Plays presents in-depth analysis of 15 plays that ran over 1,000 performances, examining what made each so popular in its time—and then, in many cases, fall into obscurity. Covering one hundred years of theatre history, it traces the long-running Broadway play as a distinct cultural phenomenon that rises and falls from 1918 to 2018. Suitable for anyone with an interest in Broadway and its history, this book explores the nature of time in this ephemeral art form, the tensions between commerce and art, between popularity and prestige, and the changing position of the Broadway play within American popular culture.

Emerging Biology in the Early Years

How Young Children Learn about the Living World

Sue Dale Tunnicliffe, Reader in Science Education at the University College London, Institute of Education, UK

This inspiring text celebrates young children as "emergent biologists" and explains how their natural inquisitiveness and curiosity can be harnessed to increase early understanding of scientific concepts, and so lay the foundations for future learning about the living world. Full of practical tips, suggested discussion points and hands-on activities, Emerging Biology in the Early Years is a uniquely child-focussed resource. Chapters provide key information on plants, animals, and human development, and prioritise the child's perspective to offer activities which provoke discussion, problem-solving, and child-led investigation.

STEM in Early Childhood Education

How Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics Strengthen Learning

Edited by Lynn E. Cohen, Long Island University, USA and Sandra Waite-Stupiansky, Edinboro University of Pennsylvania, University

STEM in Early Childhood Education explores how STEM can be integrated into early childhood curricula, highlighting recent research and innovations in the field and implications for practice and policy. Based on the argument that high-quality STEM education needs to start early, this book emphasizes that early childhood education must include science, technology, engineering, and mathematics.

Working with Two-year-olds

Developing Reflective Practice

Julie Brierley

Working with Two-year-olds is an accessible and practical guide into the developmental pathways of two-year-olds. The book uses established research and environmental and cultural effects to provide an essential background on two-year-old development, while incorporating reflective questions and tasks to encourage self-reflection throughout.

Providing theoretical overviews alongside practical ideas, and consistently encouraging critical self-reflection on all topics covered, Brierley has created an informative and constructive manual for students, practitioners and childminders.

Metacognition, Worldviews and Religious Education

A Practical Guide for Teachers

Shirley Larkin, University of Exeter, Rob Freathy, University of Exeter, Jonathan Doney, University of Exeter, UK and Giles Freathy

Religious Education holds a unique place within the state education system. Yet, the teaching of RE has often been criticised for its tendency to present simplified and stereotypical representations of religions. Bringing together the theory of metacognition with RE curriculum content, this book offers a coherent and theoretically supported approach to RE and beyond that is applicable to a range of subjects and students of various age groups.

Short Wordless Picture Books

Developing Sentence and Narrative Skills for People with Speech, Language and Communication Needs

Kulvinder Kaur

This collection of short wordless picture books helps to support children with speech, language and communication needs as they develop their expressive sentence and narrative skills through storytelling. Each book is comprised of six colourful images that follow a simple everyday routine and, unlike traditional picture books, follows a film scroll effect, showing the progression of time and allowing the child to follow the story to its resolution. Suitable for any child who requires support and practice in developing their speech, this is an invaluable resource for speech and language therapists, teaching staff and caregivers.

Storytelling for Social Justice

Connecting Narrative and the Arts in Antiracist Teaching

Lee Anne Bell, Barnard College, USA

Series: Teaching/Learning Social Justice

Storytelling for Social Justice explores the connections between how the way we talk about race and racism affects the actions we imagine and are willing to take to address racial injustice. Through accessible language and candid discussions, it explores ways to make sense of the racial constructions expressed through the pervasive language and images we encounter everyday and strategies for developing a more critical understanding of how racism operates culturally and institutionally in our society. This new edition includes case studies and portraits to highlight the variety of ways a storytelling model can be infused into curriculum.

Black Appetite. White Food.

Issues of Race, Voice, and Justice Within and Beyond the Classroom

Jamila Lyiscott

Renowned speaker and author Jamila Lyiscott provides ideas and tools that teachers, school leaders, and professors can use to have productive dialogues about racial injustice and inequality. Part I of the book helps you ask the hard questions, such as whether your pedagogy is more aligned with colonialism than you realize, and whether you are really giving students of color of voice. Part II offers a variety of helpful strategies for analysis and reflection. Each chapter includes personal stories, frank discussions of the barriers you may face, and practical ideas that will guide you as you work to confront privilege in your classroom, campus, and beyond.

Changing Education Systems

A Research-based Approach

Mel Ainscow, University of Manchester, UK, Christopher Chapman and Mark Hadfield, University of Wolverhampton, UK

Sustainable improvement in schools serving students from disadvantaged communities remains a challenge and has considerable implications for those in the research community as they seek to influence developments in the field. This book offers advice on how research and researchers can best contribute to improvements. It argues that education systems will only be able to use research effectively if steps are taken to overcome locally specific barriers, engage with research and understand how research is constructed and critiqued by key stakeholders. This book is crucial reading for policymakers, practitioners and those working in academic research.

The Gradual Art of School Improvement

A Practical Guide

Richard Steward, Headteacher, The Woodroffe School

School improvement in recent years has largely focused on rapid improvement and quick fixes. Yet, genuine and sustainable school improvement is complex, gradual and incremental. It requires developing a culture and focusing relentlessly on teaching and learning.

The Gradual Art of School Improvement is a comprehensive practical guide to school improvement, covering aspects such as improvement planning, staff development, the learning environment, dealing with outside pressures including inspection, curriculum design and the role of leaders at all levels.

Body Image in the Primary School

A Self-Esteem Approach to Building Confidence

Nicky Hutchinson, Behaviour Support Service, Bristol Council, UK and Chris Calland

Young people's body image is a growing problem that has become even more of an issue in recent years. This updated second edition of Body Image in the Primary School recognises this as a concern for younger children that needs to be addressed at an early age and examines some of the pressures that young people face. It presents a clear, easy to use scheme of work to support emotional literacy and PSHE throughout the primary years and into the first years of secondary school. This scheme of work will help young people to develop resilience to the pressures of modern society and develop a healthy body image, whilst supporting their parents and carers for years to come.

Multiple Multi-Sensory Rooms: Myth Busting the Magic

Joanna Grace

Multi-Sensory rooms are widely used across the country in schools, care settings, hospitals and homes. Even settings such as football stadiums and airports are installing multi-sensory environments. Nevertheless, a significant lack of effective research has led to a sense of unease around sensory rooms. This crucial book explores the use of multi-sensory rooms in order to ease that anxiety; taking the mystery out of multi-sensory rooms, and supporting the reader to reflect and make the most out of their space. Written by a leading sensory specialist in a fully accessible way, this book is an invaluable tool for anybody who uses, or is considering using, a multi-sensory room.

Supporting the Emotional Well-being of Children and Young People with Learning Disabilities

A Whole School Approach

Mark Fox, Tom Laverty and Sanchita Chowdhury

This highly practical resource provides schools for children with severe and complex learning disabilities with a framework to support their well-being and mental health. Each chapter provides material, ideas and activities for special school teachers with sections that can be used and adapted for training workshops with the school staff. This book will ensure that teachers of these children develop a greater understanding of their emotional needs and follow two central strategies: to prioritise and support the emotional wellbeing of the whole class and of individual children, recognising that emotional wellbeing is integral to learning and enjoyment at school.

Monster Moods Cards

Helping Children to Talk About and Express Emotions and Feelings

Juliette Ttofa and Julia Gallego, Illustrator and designer, UK

Monster Moods is a set of beautifully illustrated playing cards designed to support emotional literacy in children and young people. Seven colourful monsters embody seven common difficult emotions: anger, fear, jealousy, loneliness, restlessness and sadness. With accompanying game ideas, online activities and downloadable posters, Monster Moods can be used to facilitate work with a young person in recognising, understanding, labelling, expressing and regulating their moods and emotions. Designed for use in groups or on a 1:1 basis by teachers, professionals and parents, the cards can be used independently or alongside the storybook How Monsters Wish to Feel.

Boosting School Belonging

Practical Strategies to Help Adolescents Feel Like They Belong at School

Kelly-Ann Allen, Monash University, Australia and Peggy Kern, University of Melbourne, Australia

Designed for teachers, psychologists and counsellors, this book presents evidence-based strategies and concepts that help foster a sense of school belonging amongst students. Feeling a sense of school belonging has been linked to better mental health outcomes in adolescents, increased school performance and greater retention rates. Comprised of six modules that explore connecting to parents, teachers, friends, self, learning and help, it can be used in an individual or group context, and also as a therapeutic tool or a prevention tool. Each module has an introductory section outlining how the module may be adapted to different contexts to ensure young people connect with school.

Taiwan

Nation-State or Province?

John Franklin Copper

In this newly revised and updated 7th edition of Taiwan: Nation-State or Province? Copper examines Taiwan's geography and history, society and culture, economy, political system and foreign and security politics in the context of Taiwan's uncertain political status as either a sovereign nation or a province of the People's Republic of China. Copper argues that Taiwan's very rapid and successful democratization suggests Taiwan should be independent and separate from China, while economic links between Taiwan and China indicate the opposite. This revised and up-to-date textbook will be essential reading for students of Taiwan, China, US-China relations and democracy.

The Fight for China's Future

Civil Society vs. the Chinese Communist Party

Willy Wo-Lap Lam

This book throws light on the quintessence of 21st Century Chinese politics through the prism of the struggle between the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) and China's vibrant intelligentsia and civil society. It examines Xi Jinping's 24-hour, multi-dimensional, AI-enabled police-state apparatus and explores the CCP's policy towards civil society. Through exclusive interviews with activists from different provinces, it analyses the experiences and aspirations of key stakeholders in Chinese society, especially intellectuals, human rights attorneys and Christian worshippers.

Mapping Motivation for Leadership

James Sale, Motivational Maps Limited, UK and Jane Thomas, Premier Life Skills Limited, UK

Series: The Complete Guide to Mapping Motivation

This is a practical guide to leadership in the C21st and builds on the '4+1' model outlined in the author's original book "Mapping Motivation: Unlocking the Key to Employee Engagement". There is an increasing body of evidence, that the single most important aspect of being a leader relates to managing emotions effectively, and this management goes way beyond simply 'understanding' emotional intelligence; it is in fact a practice and one that is intimately connected with personal development and growth, and with energy. Energy, as Mapping Motivation made clear, is synonymous with motivation. The effective leaders of tomorrow will be those who understand their motivators.

Small Actions, Big Difference

Leveraging Corporate Sustainability to Drive Firm and Societal Value

CB Bhattacharya

Despite dire warnings about global warming, carbon emissions by the world's largest companies are increasing and only a few companies have strategies for managing carbon emissions and water resources. So what separates the best from the rest? Companies at sustainability have created the conditions for their stakeholders to own sustainability and reap the benefits that come with deeper experience with and ownership of social and environmental issues. Based on interviews with 25 global multinational corporations, this is the first book to connect sustainability to the theory and principles of psychological ownership to propose a succinct, easy to digest model for managerial use.

So You Want to be a Social Entrepreneur?

Starting Out, Scaling Up and Staying True

Michael Gordon

What's it like to be a social entrepreneur — not a textbook social entrepreneur but on one the ground? This book explains how. Michael Gordon, leading Social Entrepreneur expert from the University of Michigan, spoke with more than one hundred social entrepreneurs—from six continents, young and old, just starting out to several decades in, addressing seemingly every societal problem of the day. This book uses their words and experiences to provide a kaleidoscopic description of what it means to become a social entrepreneur.

Success Is Within

The 21 Ways for Achieving Results, Prosperity, and Fulfillment by Changing Your Leadership Mindset

Payal Nanjani

Drawing from a blend of Eastern and Western wisdom, this book blends true-life storytelling about the challenges of actual business professionals with insights drawn from traditional parables from classic "wisdom books" to inspire readers to think-through how to transform their mindsets. Ultimately, the book helps magnify one's inner power: the power of one's mind. The book calls on business professionals to unleash their "inner leader." When they recognize the power of their inner leader, they will become unstoppable.

The Innovator's Discussion

The Conversational Skills of Entrepreneurial Teams

Betsy Campbell, Krause Innovation Studio, Pennsylvania State University, USA

Few ideas about innovation and entrepreneurship have caught on as well as the lean-startup and design-thinking approaches to breakthroughs and new ventures. However, despite incorporating these practices into their work, most innovative entrepreneurial teams still fail. The Innovator's Discussion explains why, and shows readers how to develop the unseen skills that differentiate successful teams from the rest. It shows them how high-performance teams verbally accomplish their work, and offers tools and techniques to cultivate these conversational competencies. Through engaging examples and exercises, this book enables readers and their team mates to build a conversational advantage.

The Right Way to Flourish

Reconnecting to the Real World

John Ehrenfeld

In this ground-breaking book, pre-eminent thought leader in the fields of sustainability and flourishing, John R. Ehrenfeld, critiques the concept of sustainability as it is understood today and which is coming more and more under attack as unclear and ineffective as a call for action.

Building upon the recent work of cognitive scientist, Iain McGilchrist, who argues that the human brain's two hemispheres present distinct different worlds, this book articulates how society must replace the current foundational left-brain-based beliefs – a mechanistic world and a human driven by self interest – with new ones based on complexity and care.

Cybercrime and Digital Deviance

Roderick S. Graham and Shawn K. Smith, Radford University
Cybercrime and Digital Deviance is a work that combines insights from sociology, criminology, and computer science to explore cybercrimes such as hacking and romance scams, along with forms of cyberdeviance such as pornography addiction, trolling, and flaming. Other issues are explored including cybercrime investigations, organized cybercrime, the use of algorithms in policing, cybervictimization, and the theories used to explain cybercrime. Taken together, Graham and Smith's application of a digital environment and Wall's cybercrime typology makes this an ideal upper level text for students in sociology and criminal justice.

Development Economics

A Critical Introduction

Shahrukh Rafi Khan, Mount Holyoke College, USA
Series: Routledge Textbooks in Development Economics

Following the 2007-2009 financial and economic crises, there has been an unprecedented demand among economics students for an alternative approach, which offers a historical, institutional and multidisciplinary treatment of the discipline.

This book presents all the core material needed to teach development economics in a one semester course, whilst also addressing the need for a new economics and offering flexibility to instructors. The book allows students to see different perspectives on key development questions, and therefore to understand more fully the contested nature of many key areas of development economics.

Applied Regression Analysis

Doing, Interpreting and Reporting

Christer Thrane, Inland Norway University of Applied Sciences, Norway

This book is an introduction to regression analysis which focuses on the practical aspects of conducting regression analysis and the real-world applications of this tool. Contrary to other textbooks on regression, this book is based on the idea that you do not necessarily need to know much about statistics and mathematics to get a firm grip on regression and perform it to perfection. This book is written primarily for those who need to do regression analysis in practice, and not only to understand how this method works in theory. The book's accessible approach is recommended for students from across the social sciences.

Digital Finance

Big Data, Start-ups, and the Future of Financial Services

Perry H. Beaumont, Columbia University, USA

Digital Finance is a text that explains what the new digital world of finance is all about, and how to make optimal use of all it has to offer. Without the knowledge or understanding of what these new insights can offer, businesses are making important decisions without the full benefit of all the information available to them. Innovative Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) are being missed, representing lost opportunities to improve upon existing practices. For any financial executive, or anyone in sales, marketing, accounting, risk, operations, or management eager to translate real-time analyses into actionable breakthroughs, being conversant with Digital Finance is simply a must.

Cryptocurrencies

A Primer on Digital Money

Mark Grabowski, Adelphi University, New York, USA

Series: Routledge Focus on Economics and Finance

Cryptocurrencies such as Bitcoin are arguably the hottest investment product currently available. A recent survey by Ipsos found that 8% of Americans own cryptocurrency and an additional 21% are interested in investing. The New York Times reported in February that many universities are scrambling to offer courses on the topic in response to growing student demand. This book provides a plain-language primer on how to confidently navigate the rapidly evolving world of cryptocurrency. It covers what cryptocurrency is, how to acquire it, how to send and receive it, along with investment strategies. Bitcoin, blockchain technology, history and legal issues are also covered.

The Global Economy

A Concise History

Edited by Franco Amatori and Andrea Colli, Bocconi University, Italy

This is a concise history of the global economy over the past thousand years, exploring the main waves of globalization, starting from the trade revolution of the Middle Ages, focusing on the Great and Little Divergence between the West and the East and the North and the South of the World. The Industrial Revolution and its consequence are examined, as well as the interaction between technological shifts and the transition in geopolitical equilibria. It focuses on the World Wars as engines of economic growth and on the crisis of the interwar period. The last chapters are dedicated to an in-depth examination of the transformation which occurred in the global economy after 1989.

Local Consumption and Global Environmental Impacts

Accounting, Trade-offs and Sustainability

Kuishuang Feng, University of Maryland, USA, Klaus Hubacek, University of Maryland, USA and Yang Yu

Series: Routledge-SCORAI Studies in Sustainable Consumption

This book describes how local consumption, particularly in urban areas, is increasingly met by global supply chains. These supply chains often extend over large geographical distances and have greater global environmental impacts, contributing to pollution, climate change, water scarcity and deforestation. The book will be key reading for students taking courses in environmental sciences, sustainability sciences, ecological economics and geography.

Environmental Ethics and Uncertainty

Wrestling with Wicked Problems

Whitney A. Bauman and Kevin J. O'Brien

This book offers a multidisciplinary (theology, philosophy, and sociology) environmental approach to ethics in response to the contemporary challenge of climate change caused by globalized economics and consumption. This book synthesises the incredible complexity of the problem and the necessity of action in response, highlighting the unambiguous problem facing humanity in the 21st century, but arguing that it is essential to develop an ethics housed in ambiguity in response.

Sustainable Action

Overcoming the Barriers

Christian Berg

Series: Routledge Studies in Sustainability

Sustainable Action surveys all the fields involved in sustainability to provide action principles which speak to actors of different kinds, not just those professionally mandated with such changes. It offers a road map to all those who might not constantly think about systems change but who are concerned and want to contribute to a sustainable future in a meaningful way.

This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of sustainability issues, as well as those looking for a framework for how to change their systems at work to impact the quadruple bottom line: environment, economy, society, and future generations.

The Age of Sustainability

Just Transitions in a Complex World

Mark Swilling, University of Stellenbosch, South Africa

Series: Routledge Studies in Sustainable Development

With transitions to more sustainable ways of living already underway, this book examines how we understand the underlying dynamics of the transitions that are unfolding. Without this understanding, we enter the future in a state of informed bewilderment. Shedding light on the highly complex challenge of a sustainable and just transition, this book is essential reading for anyone concerned with establishing a more sustainable and equitable world. Ultimately, this is a book about hope, but without easy answers.

What Can I Do to Help Heal the Environmental Crisis?

Haydn Washington

Series: Routledge Explorations in Environmental Studies

The culmination of over three decades of writing by environmental scientist and writer Haydn Washington, this book examines the global environmental crisis and its solutions. Framing the discussion around three central predicaments - the ecological, the social, and the economic - Washington provides background as to why each of these are in crisis and presents steps that individuals can personally take to heal the world. With a focus on positive, personal solutions, this book is an essential read for students and scholars of environmental science and environmental philosophy, and for all those keen to heal the world and contribute towards a sustainable future.

Writing a New Environmental Era

Moving forward to nature

Ken Hiltner

Series: Routledge Environmental Humanities

Writing a New Environmental Era considers and then rejects back-to-nature thinking and its proponents like Henry David Thoreau, arguing that human beings have never lived at peace with nature. Using the rise of the automobile and climate change denial literature to explore how our current environmental era was written into existence, Ken Hiltner argues that the humanities need to lead us there.

Nursing Literature Reviews

A Reflection

Martin Lipscomb, University of Worcester, UK

Literature reviews – that is the locating and appraising of relevant research – are a common tool underpinning evidence-based practice in nursing. This challenging book unpicks the thinking behind them, arguing that the approach is beset with significant problems that are seldom recognised. Positing that nurses often ask 'unanswerable' questions – whether they are metaphysical, ethical, or sociological – and identifying difficulties that both quantitative and qualitative research pose for nurses, the book explores exactly why literature reviews are so much trickier than they appear before outlining a possible way forward. It is an important contribution to the EBP debate.

Stories of Resilience in Nursing

Tales from the Frontline of Nursing

Michael Traynor, Middlesex University, UK

Ideas about resilience and identity continue to be promoted, discussed and debated in nursing. This book uses narratives from or about nurses to explore these complex and important concepts, unsettling our certainties and opening up new perspectives on what they might mean and involve. The book ends with chapter-by-chapter contextual material to promote reflection, discussion and further reading. Written with nursing students preparing to transition to the workplace and professional status in mind, this thought-provoking book is also suitable for nurses and nurse academics interested in resilience and issues around professional identity.

Winners and Losers in the 'Arab Spring'

Profiles in Chaos

Yossi (Joseph) Alpher

Series: UCLA Center for Middle East Development (CMED) series

This book looks at the way primarily external actors influenced and were influenced by the revolutionary chaos that erupted in the Arab Middle East in 2011. The Arab revolutions radically altered the Middle East dynamic and particularly the strategic standing of key actors, both locally and globally.

'Winners and Losers in the Arab Spring' takes a global look at a massive regional upheaval that is far from over. It is an essential read for everybody interested in the Arab revolutions, Middle East and international strategic affairs.

Anti-Americanism and American Exceptionalism

Prejudice and Pride about the USA

Brendon O'Connor, Griffith University, Brisbane, Australia
Series: Routledge Studies in US Foreign Policy

This book argues against the tendency to see America as the worst or best nation and instead presents a case for seeing anti-Americanism as a counterproductive prejudice. There are many reasons to criticise American policies, politics and even society, but a crucial distinction must be drawn between criticism and prejudice. Offering precise and useful ways of understanding anti-Americanism and American exceptionalism that place the terms in their relevant political contexts, this volume is a useful and engaging resource for those researching or studying American politics and ideology, foreign policy, American culture and international relations.

Conceptualizing 'Everyday Resistance'

A Transdisciplinary Approach

Stellan Vinthagen and Anna Johansson

In this book, Stellan Vinthagen and Anna Johansson offers researchers and students from different theoretical and empirical fields an essential overview of this field, a theoretical definition and a useful analytical framework to inspire further research within the area of power and resistance. To illustrate its usefulness in a variation of settings, Vinthagen and Johansson pick four case studies which cover a broad range of contexts, themes, power configurations and resistance repertoires. These include military occupation; surveillance and workplace behavior; body image and the fat acceptance movement; and humor and patriarchal-sovereignty.

Finance, Accumulation and Monetary Power

Understanding Financial Socialism in Advanced Capitalist Economies

Daniel Woodley, DLD College, London, UK

This accessible yet rigorous book examines the development of 'financial socialism' in advanced capitalist economies in the decade since the global financial crisis of 2007-2009. It explains the dynamics of the crisis as it has developed and assesses the response of monetary elites to systemic financial risk in the global economy. It presents a revealing and radical critique of the failure of the International Political Economy to apprehend changes taking place within capitalism employing a critical-theoretical analysis of contradictions in the capitalist reproduction scheme.

International Order and the Politics of Disaster

Scott D. Watson, University of Victoria, Canada

In this indispensable and comprehensive text, Scott D. Watson critically examines the current understanding of international order that underpins international disaster management and disaster diplomacy. Based on empirical analysis of the three international 'disaster management regimes' (disaster relief, disaster risk reduction, and disaster migration) and case studies of disaster diplomacy in the United States, Egypt and China, Watson argues that international disaster management and disaster diplomacy are not simply efforts to reduce the impact of disasters or to manage bilateral relations, but to reinforce key beliefs about the larger international order.

Italian Democracy

How It Works

Gianfranco Pasquino, Johns Hopkins SAIS Europe, Bologna Center, Italy

This textbook, from one of Italy's most eminent scholars, provides broad coverage and critique of Italian politics and society. Providing the readers with the knowledge necessary to understand the working of the Italian political system, it also offers answers to some of the most important challenges facing the country – and other contemporary democracies – today, such as populism, anti-politics, and corruption. Critical but underpinned by thorough data and analysis, it presents alternative views alongside the author's interpretation.

Knowledge and Power in Public Bureaucracies

From Pyramid to Circle

David G. Carnevale, University of Oklahoma, Norman, Oklahoma, USA and Camilla Stivers

Answering the question of why management reforms over the past century have failed on their own terms, this book examines the existence of conflicting forms of knowledge within public bureaucracies, how these contradictory perspectives interact (or fail to interact), and the ways in which these systems preserve managerial efforts to control workers. This book will serve as an ideal supplement to introductory public administration and organizational theory courses, as well as courses for mid-career professionals, helping to frame their work experiences.

Policy and Governance in Post-Conflict Settings

Theory & Practice

Puth sodary Tat, American University of Afghanistan, Kabul
Post-conflict countries typically have failing infrastructure, personnel shortages, and budget deficits. They often run the risk of relapse into violence, population conflicts, bureaucratic chaos and corruption, broken economic stature, and limited access to goods. This book provides a historical and theoretical framework for understanding post-conflict governance. It covers governance lifecycles as well as tools for the everyday work of project managers in these regions. Post-Truth, Fake News and Democracy

Mapping the Politics of Falsehood

Johan Farkas, Malmö University, Sweden and Jannick Schou, IT University of Copenhagen, Denmark

Series: Routledge Studies in Global Information, Politics and Society

The dominant narrative of our time is that democracy is in a state of emergency caused by social media, changes to journalism and misinformed masses. Engaging with critical political philosophy, Johan Farkas and Jannick Schou argue that these solutions neglect the fact that democracy has never been about truth alone. It is equally about the voice of the democratic people. Post-Truth, Fake News and Democracy delivers a sobering diagnosis of our times. It maps contemporary discourses on truth and democracy, foregrounds their normative foundations and connects these to historical changes within liberal democracies.

Performance Budgeting Reform

Theories and International Practices

Edited by Alfred Tat-Kei Ho, University of Kansas, USA, Maarten de Jong, The Ministry of Finance, Netherlands and Zaozao Zhao

Using different theoretical frameworks that examine the political, organizational, and cultural dynamics of performance budgeting, this book examines the reasons performance budgeting has been adopted in a variety of countries, how it has been implemented, and why it succeeded or failed. Chapters include cases across a wide range of regions including the US, Africa, Asia, Australia, Europe, Latin America, and the Middle East.

Contributors include both scholars and seasoned practitioners with extensive experience in implementing or advising performance budgeting reforms.

(Inter)Facing Death

Life in Global Uncertainty

Sam Han, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore
Series: Classical and Contemporary Social Theory
(Inter)Facing Death analyzes the nexus of death and digital culture in the contemporary moment in the context of recent developments in social, cultural and political theory. It argues that death today can be thought of as "interfaced," that is mediated and expressed, in various aspects of contemporary life rather than put to the side or overcome as many narratives of modernity have suggested. Employing concepts from anthropology, sociology, media studies and communications, it will appeal to scholars and students of social and political theory, anthropology, sociology and cultural and media studies with interests in death.

Glorious Causes

The Irrationality of Capitalism, War and Politics

Yale R. Magrass, University of Massachusetts, Dartmouth and Charles Derber

Series: Universalizing Resistance

Drawing on historical cases of the American South before and after the Civil War, Europe & Germany between the world wars, and the U.S. in Vietnam, this book takes a historical approach to explain the problems of capitalism and leadership in western democracies today. Capitalist democracies proclaim equality, prosperity and security but produce extremes of inequality, cultural divides and frequent wars. The devastation of the world wars led Europe to forgo visions of empire, militarism and glory and focus upon improving the quality of life for their own citizens. The authors points to pathways for America to follow Europe's example to build a better life for the American people.

Love and Intimacy in Contemporary Society

Love in an International Context

Ann Brooks, Australian Catholic University, Australia

Love and Intimacy in Contemporary Society reflects on relationships in contemporary society and the role of love and intimacy in framing lives. The book shows how relationships are impacted by social networking and new technologies and the opportunities and challenges posed by these new platforms for building relationships. Finally, the book examines how intimacy has become commercialised in late capitalism and how that acts to change relationships. The book is written in an accessible way and explores a range of theoretical debates and contemporary research around emotions, which can be useful for undergraduate, postgraduate and doctoral study.

Money

A Theory of Modern Society

Nico Stehr, Zeppelin University, Germany and Dustin Voss

Social sciences mostly consider money a medium of exchange that facilitates transactions. This new book treats money as a much more inclusive social fact that has more profoundly influenced the emergence of modern society. Money facilitates exchange, and yet it is also a moral and political category, around which durable social, economic, and cultural trends revolve. The authors trace the transformational scope of monetization and financialization along the four classical productive forces – land, capital, labor, and knowledge – and evaluate the consequences of an irrepensible urge to quantify and monetize almost everything social.

Routledge International Handbook of Human Trafficking

A Multi-Disciplinary and Applied Approach

Edited by Rochelle L. Dalla, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, USA and Donna Sabella, University of Massachusetts, USA
 Series: Routledge International Handbooks

Despite burgeoning interest, education, research, and advocacy efforts, a pinnacle handbook devoted to human trafficking and modern-day slavery—with global focus and multi-disciplinary scope—does not currently exist. The Routledge International Handbook of Human Trafficking was created to fill this resource gap. Written by expert scholars, service providers, policy analysts, and health-care professionals, this Handbook is an invaluable resource for those already working in the field, as well as for students in any discipline who want to learn (or learn more) about HT and modern-day slavery.

The Privatization of Care

The Case of Nursing Homes

Edited by Patricia Armstrong, Patricia Armstrong, York University, Canada and Hugh Armstrong
 Series: Aging and Society

Employing cross national comparisons, this book focuses on nursing homes under privatization policies. Elder care has come under varied forms of privatization in the USA, Canada, and Germany. Marketizing goes beyond ownership of nursing homes to include multiple forms of privatization. Too often, a marketized system transforms residents into customers, alters the extent to which public can influence decision-making, impacts staffing, and shifts responsibilities for payment and care work to individuals or their families. The authors' analyses and data point to pitfalls of marketization, seeking greater clarity to ensure older adults' right to appropriate, accessible, quality care.

Thickening Fat

Fat Bodies, Intersectionality, and Social Justice

Edited by May Friedman, Carla Rice and Jen Rinaldi

Thickening Fat: Fat Bodies, Intersectionality and Social Justice, seeks to explore the multiple, variable, and embodied experiences of fat oppression and fat activism. Moving beyond an analysis of fat oppression as singular, this book will aim to unpack the volatility of fat—the mutability of fat embodiments as they correlate with other embodied subjectivities, and the threshold where fat begins to be reviled, celebrated, or amended.

Universal Basic Income

Brian McDonough and Jessie Bustillos Morales, London Metropolitan University, UK

Series: Key Ideas

Universal basic income is a controversial policy which is causing a stir amongst academics, politicians, journalists and policy makers all over the world. The idea of receiving 'money for nothing', with no strings attached, has for a long time appeared a crazy or radical proposal. But today, this policy is being put into practice. With more and more trials and experiments taking place in different countries, this book provides both the theory and context for making sense of different basic income approaches, examining how the policy can be best implemented. This book is an essential resource for anyone who wishes to get to grips with universal basic income.

Architecture and Health

Guiding Principles for Practice

Edited by Dina Battisto, Clemson University, US and Jacob J. Wilhelm, Clemson University, US

Health and architecture are increasingly overlapping for designers in the 21st Century, with mounting evidence revealing that built environments are critical for people's health and well-being in everyday life. Architecture and Health focuses on principles related to architecture for health and well-being with a deep dive into specific case studies.

Saving The Planet By Design

Reinventing Our World Through Ecomimesis

Ken Yeang, Llewelyn Davies Yeang, London, UK

Can we save the planet by design? – for a resilient, durable and sustainable future for human society, we need to repurpose, reinvent, redesign, remake and recover our human-made world so that our built environment is seamlessly biointegrated with Nature to function synergistically with it. Addressing this is the most compelling question for not just those whose daily work impacts on Nature such as architects, engineers, landscape designers, town planners, environmental policy makers, builders and others, but it is a question that all of humanity needs to urgently address.

How to Read Architecture

An Introduction to Interpreting the Built Environment

Paulette Singley, Woodbury University, Burbank, California, USA

How to Read Architecture is based on the fundamental premise that reading and interpreting architecture is something we already do, and that close observation matters. This book enhances this skill so that given an unfamiliar building, you will have the tools to understand it and to be inspired by it. Author Paulette Singley encourages you to misread, closely read, conventionally read, and unconventionally read architecture to stimulate your creative process.

Structure for Architects

A Case Study in Steel, Wood, and Reinforced Concrete Design

Ashwani Bedi and Ramsey Dabby

Structure for Architects: A Case Study in Steel, Wood, and Reinforced Concrete Design is a sequel to the authors' first text, Structure for Architects: A Primer emphasizing the conceptual understanding of structural design in simple language and terms. This book focuses on structural principles applied to the design of typical structures – a beam, a girder, and a column – in a diagrammatic frame building. Through the application of a single Case Study across three key materials, the book illustrates the theory, principles, and process of structural design.

Tall: the design and construction of high-rise architecture

Edited by Guy Marriage, Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand

This is a guide to both the basics and the details of tall building design, delving into the rudimentary aspects of design that an architect of a tall building must consider, as well as looking at the rationale for why a building must be built the way it is. Liberally illustrated with clear, simple black and white illustrations showing how the building structure and details can be built, this book greatly assists the reader in their understanding of the building process for a modern office tower. By focusing on the nuts and bolts of real-life design and construction, it provides a practical guide and desk-reference to any architect embarking on a tall building project.

UnDoing Buildings

Adaptive Reuse and Cultural Memory

Sally Stone, Manchester School of Architecture, UK

UnDoing Buildings: Adaptive Reuse and Cultural Memory discusses one of the greatest challenges for the twenty-first century society: what is to be done with the huge stock of existing buildings that have outlived the function for which they were built? Their worth is well recognised and the importance of retaining them has been long debated, but if they are to be saved, what is to be done with these redundant buildings?

Affordable Housing for Smart Villages

Hemanta Doloi, The University of Melbourne, Australia and Sally Donovan

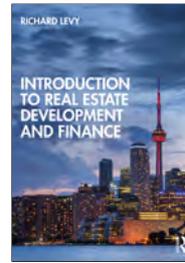

This book initiates a fresh discussion of affordability in rural housing set in the context of the rapidly shifting balance between rural and urban populations. Developed around four intersecting themes: explaining houses and housing in rural settings; exploring affordability in the context of aspirations and vulnerability; rural development agendas involving housing and communities; and construction for resilience in rural communities, the book provides an overview of some of the little understood and sometimes counter-intuitive best practices on rural affordability and affordable housing that have emerged in developing economies over the last thirty years.

Introduction to Real Estate Development and Finance

Richard M. Levy, University of Calgary, Canada

This book provides readers with a basic understanding of the principles that underlie real estate development. A brief historical overview and an introduction to basic principles are followed by examples from practice. Case studies focus on how cities change and respond to the economic, technological, social and political forces that shape urban development in North America. This book also provides an overview of the forces of supply and demand that gauge the potential market for a new project. In determining the size of "residual demand", estimates for population growth, family formation, and new development are important.

Offsite Production and Manufacturing for Innovative Construction

People, Process and Technology

Edited by Jack S. Goulding, Northumbria University, UK and Farzad Pour Rahimian, University of Strathclyde, UK

By synthesising the topics surrounding offsite manufacturing, this book takes hot construction subjects including stakeholders, skills, barriers, business models, question of value, SMEs, sustainable programs, BIM, and lean, that have been well documented and researched outside of the realm of offsite construction and evaluates them under the offsite lens. Three main themes are proposed: People, Process and Technology. Topics are mapped in order to allow readers to appreciate the symbiotic forces and interrelationships that exist – particularly on design, manufacturing and construction. Essential reading

Creating Emotionally Intelligent Workspaces

A Design Guide to Office Chemistry

Edward Finch, Former Editor-in-Chief of 'Facilities', author and former Professor in Facilities Management at the University of Salford, UK and Guillermo Aranda-Mena, RMIT University, Australia

This book is the first of its kind in attempting to match personality types with different working environments. Designed as a workbook for architecture and facilities management students, it explores the challenges of creating an 'emotionally intelligent workplace' and examines how people interact and collaborate in differing ways as a result of distinct brain chemistries. Introducing the four brain chemical drivers and using scientific evidence from the world of neurochemistry to highlight different personality traits, it throws a new light on workplace design. The book should also be read by those interested in occupational psychology and the impact of workplace design.

Routledge Handbook of Integrated Project Delivery

Edited by Derek Walker, Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology, Australia and Steve Rowlinson, University of Hong Kong

The concept of integrated project delivery (IPD) has evolved as a result of the need for highly expert teams of people to collaborate to deliver extremely complex projects, to manage expectations about delivery speed, changes in governance standards and to take advantage of and manage expectations raised by rapid advances in technology. All this demands effective change management. This is the first Handbook to contextualise and thematically explore the concept with an emphasis on rigorous practical and theoretical validation.

Bike Share examines all the major developments in the 50-year history of bike share programs. The book provides a detailed focus on contemporary bike share programs, such as those recently established in Paris, London, and New York. It also addresses how rapid technological innovation, particularly in terms of mobile internet devices and electric assist bicycles may change the face of not just cycling, but urban mobility more generally. The book provides scholars, city planners, transportation practitioners and students with a resource that captures the most pertinent scientific findings and practical lessons that have been from bike share programs around the world.

Creating Great Places

Evidence-based Urban Design for Health and Wellbeing

Debra Flanders Cushing and Evonne Miller

This book provides a bold vision and roadmap for creating great places. Imagining and designing urban environments where all people thrive is an extraordinary task, and in this compelling narrative, Cushing and Miller remind us that theory is a powerful starting point. Drawing on international research, illustrated case studies, personal experiences, as well as fascinating examples from history and pop culture, this practical book provides the reader with inspiration, guidance and tools. The first section outlines six critical theories for contemporary urban design - affordance, prospect-refuge, personal space, sense of place/genius loci, place attachment, and biophilic design.

The Design of Productive Landscapes

Phoebe Lickwar, University of Arkansas, USA and Roxi Thoren, University of Oregon, USA

Farmscape situates agriculture as a design practice, using case studies and essays to propose lessons for contemporary landscape architects who are interested in integrating agriculture into their designs. Agricultural processes and technologies have shaped landscape architectural projects. The book describes the history of agriculture and reveals diverse design practices that utilise rhythms and agriculture to create farms that are also sites of beauty, community, conservation, remediation and pleasure. Transformative Ground

A Field Guide to the Post-Industrial Landscape

Ross Mclean, University of Edinburgh, UK

A Field Guide to the Post-Industrial Landscape presents a range of theoretical perspectives and practical approaches, offering a broad scope of contemporary design strategies that deal with post-industrial landscapes. Through a series of thematic chapters, allied with precedents from leading design offices, this book identifies how the context of post-industrial landscapes has compelled shifts in fundamental ideas that underpin landscape design. As a richly illustrated account of this transformative ground, this book provides a must-have guide to help you reimagine the post-industrial landscape.

Planting Design

Connecting People and Place

Patrick Mooney

This book meshes the art of planting design with an understanding of how humans respond to natural environments. Beginning with an understanding of human needs, preferences, and responses to landscape, the author interprets the ways in which an understanding of the human-environment interaction can inform planting design. Many of the principles and techniques that may be used in planting design are illustrated with examples by leading landscape architects and designers from the United Kingdom, Europe, North America and Asia.

Understanding Metropolitan Landscapes

Andrew MacKenzie, Australian National University, Australia

This book opens a key critical discussion into the relational aspects of city and landscape and how each element shapes the boundaries of the other, covering topics such as material natures, governance systems and processes, and environmental policy. It presents a compendium of concepts and ideas that have emerged from landscape architecture, planning, and environmental policy and management.

Using a range of illustrated case studies, it provokes discussions on the major themes driving the growth of cities by exploring the underlying tensions around notions of sustainable settlement, climate change, urban migration and new technologies.

Creative Repetition and Intersubjectivity

Contemporary Freudian Explorations of Trauma, Memory, and Clinical Process

Bruce E. Reis and Christopher Bollas

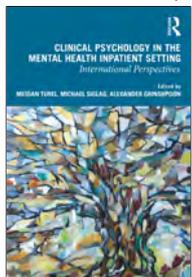

Creative Repetition and Intersubjectivity looks at contemporary Freudian and post-Freudian theory through an intersubjective lens. Bruce Reis offers views on how psychoanalytic conceptions from the last century uniquely manifest in the consulting rooms of this century – how analytic technique has radically evolved through developing Freud's original insights into dreaming, and hallucinosis; and how the presentation of today's analysands calls for analyst's use of themselves in unprecedented new ways.

How Psychotherapy Helps Us Understand Sexual Relationships

Insights from the Consulting Room

Cherry Potter

In this fascinating book, Cherry Potter takes readers on her personal and professional quest for insights into sex, relationships and gender differences. Where do our feelings around sexuality come from, and why do we act in certain ways? What is the impact of 'performance anxiety' on men, and on society generally? Why are women still faking it? Is online porn turning the clock backwards? The book delves into the work of Freud, Klein, and Bowlby for insights into our conscious and unconscious fears and desires, introducing readers to a range of engaging clients, as well as the therapeutic relationship that offers them renewed hope for the future.

In the Shadow of Freud's Couch

Portraits of Psychoanalysts in Their Offices

Mark Gerald

In the Shadow of Freud's Couch: Portraits of Psychoanalysts in Their Offices uses text and images to form a complex portrait of psychoanalysis today. It is the culmination of the authors fifteen-year project of photographing psychoanalysts in their offices across 27 cities and 10 countries. It will be of great interest to psychoanalysts and psychoanalytic psychotherapists, as well as psychotherapists, counsellors and social workers interested in understanding and innovating the spaces used for mental health treatment. It will also appeal to interior designers, office architects, photographers and anyone who ever considered entering a psychoanalyst's office.

Non-Death Loss and Grief

Context and Clinical Implications

Edited by Darcy L. Harris, Western University, Ontario, Canada

Series edited by Darcy L. Harris

Series: Series in Death, Dying, and Bereavement

Non-Death Loss and Grief explores recent research, clinical applications, and current thinking on various types of non-death losses and the unique features of the grieving process that accompany them. The chapters in this book focus not just on the individual and intrapersonal perspective but also examine experiences that are interpersonal and sociopolitical in nature. Case studies and clinical examples are used throughout to help make the material relevant, and the chapters also discuss implications for practice for a variety of non-death loss experiences.

Psychotherapy Meets Emotional Neuroscience

The Two Minds of Cognition and Feeling

Gilbert Pugh

Psychotherapy Meets Emotional Neuroscience: The Two Minds of Cognition and Feeling introduces new insights from the neurosciences into the nature of our emotions and feelings, and argues for a more empathetic approach to psychotherapy as a result. In an era when neuroscientific research has provided far-reaching discoveries into how our brains work, this clear-sighted, accessible overview will offer psychotherapists and psychoanalysts, whether practising or in training, or indeed, those seeking therapy for personal reasons, a way to integrate these insights into their understanding of both their patients and themselves.

A Coach's Guide to Maximizing the Youth Sport Experience

Work Hard, Be Kind

Mary Fry, University of Kansas, USA, Lori Gano-Overway, Marta Guivernau, Mi-Sook Kim and Maria Newton

This book provides a guide for coaches, sport administrators, parents, and sport psychology practitioners for helping teams develop caring/task-involving climates that optimize athletes' sport experience and performance. It introduces the concept of a caring/task-involving climate; summarizes research highlighting the many benefits of creating this climate; and provides a "how to" guide to creating this climate in sport. It will be appropriate for those who have minimal training in sport psychology, but who are involved in sport at many levels (e.g., youth, high school).

Handbook of Cognitive Archaeology

Psychology in Prehistory

Edited by Tracy B. Henley, Texas A&M University, USA, Matt J. Rossano, Southeastern Louisiana University, USA and Edward P. Kardas, Southern Arkansas University, USA

The Handbook of Cognitive Archaeology organizes the cognitive archaeological landscape into a strong psychological framework, opening the field to scholars across behavioral sciences. Greater psychological input in archaeology can create further understanding of the evolution of the human mind as revealed in the hominin archaeological record. With contributions from leading experts covering topics in physiological, cognitive, developmental, social, and abnormal psychology, this book engages psychologists with how their discipline can contribute to understanding early and ancient humans.

Cognitive Development and Cognitive Neuroscience

The Learning Brain

Usha Goswami, University of Cambridge, UK

The new edition of this best-selling textbook on Cognitive Development has been thoroughly updated with the latest research in neuroscience. Going beyond Piaget and traditional theories it demonstrates how new data from brain science require a new theoretical framework for teaching cognitive development, based on learning. Coverage new to this edition includes a focus on epigenetics and the nature-nurture debate, the latest cross-cultural research and developments in the study of Theory of Mind. This book is essential for students of developmental and cognitive psychology, education, language and the learning sciences.

Critical Community Psychology

Critical Action and Social Change

Carolyn Kagan, Mark Burton, Paul Duckett, Rebecca Lawthorn and Asiya Siddiquee

This accessible textbook provides an overview of theoretical and practical issues around psychological work in a range of community settings. Covering key issues including migration, social justice, and the environment, the three sections of the book allow students to think, act, and reflect on their work. The book utilises examples and reflections on practice drawn from years of experience of the authors which helps students to see the application of theory and encourages them to engage in their own critical thinking. This is the ideal resource for students of different community based professions, working in a range of applied settings, at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels.

Critical Ethnographic Perspectives on Medical Travel

Cecilia Vindrola Padros

Series: Critical Approaches to Health

The sourcing of healthcare in different countries is a growing phenomenon. But whether it's to receive treatment unavailable or forbidden in a domestic setting, the effects of people travelling to meet their healthcare requirements abroad has numerous effects. This important book critically explores the social and cultural ramifications of a two-tier system, and the impact on the quality of medical services in both host and domestic settings. Through an ethnographic lens, the book examines how medical travel raises issues around gender, class as well as ethnicity. It will be important reading for scholars across medical sociology, anthropology and critical health studies.

Extreme Intelligence

Development, Predicaments, Implications

Sonja Falck

In this ambitious and highly original book, Sonja Falck explores the idea that a firm correlation has been demonstrated between higher intelligence and various successful life outcomes and achievements, alongside the contradictory documentation of extremely high intelligence being associated with various poor outcomes. Drawing on the author's own research interviews with the highly gifted, the book argues that understanding the dynamics of how extreme intelligence is cultivated, or hampered, interpersonally can facilitate better outcomes. It will be essential reading for anyone supporting or working with the highly gifted, as well as those researching the field of intelligence.

Family Experience of Brain Injury

Surviving, Coping, Adjusting

Jo Clark-Wilson and Mark Holloway

Series: After Brain Injury: Survivor Stories

This important book gives a voice to family members of people with a brain injury, who can also be severely impacted by the experience. Changes to behaviour, to personality and to functioning may render the injured person entirely different and the involved relative is left loving a stranger, often with very little specialist help. Combining expert commentary with the stories of family members, this book points towards sources of support, normalises their experience and provides a context for their grief and loss.

Foundations of Geometric Cognition

Mateusz Hohol

Foundations of Geometric Cognition presents an empirically inspired theory of geometric cognition. The book explains how language and diagrams provide cognitive scaffolding for abstract geometric thinking within a context of Euclidean systems of thought. Hohol argues that geometric cognition is founded on our basic spatial abilities and requires interactions between concrete spatial representations and abstract linguistic ones. Drawing on research from diverse fields including psychology, cognitive science, and mathematics, this book is a must-read for anyone interested in the burgeoning field of geometric cognition.

Functions of the Brain

A Conceptual Approach to Cognitive Neuroscience

Albert Kok

Considering how computational properties of the brain inform cognitive functions, Mind and Brain presents a unique conceptual introduction to cognitive neuroscience. Beginning with a brief history of early cognitive neuroscience research, the book goes on to discuss how information is represented and processed in the brain, before discussing the underlying functional organization of larger-scale brain networks involved in human cognition. The book concludes with an overview of the functional architecture of three overlapping domains of cognition, namely attention and consciousness, memory, and perception and action, considering how they interconnect in functional brain space.

Health at Work

Critical Perspectives

Leah Tomkins, Open University, UK and Katrina Pritchard, Swansea University, UK

Series: Critical Approaches to Health

This fascinating book deconstructs how we think about health in the workplace, exploring the conflict between how organizations are conceived in terms of productivity and efficiency, and the current agenda for personal growth and well-being. From the 'fix-it' discourse of avoiding or managing unhealth, to that of 'flourishing' in the pursuit of authentic personal experiences through work, the book examines this paradox through several core topics at the heart of contemporary research and practice, including technology, aging and emotions.

This will be illuminating reading for students and scholars across management studies, occupational health, organizational psychology and HRM.

4th Edition

Identity in Adolescence

The Balance between Self and Other

Laura Ferrer-Wreder, Department of Psychology, Stockholm University and Jane Kroger

Series: Adolescence and Society

This 4th edition has been completely revised to address the huge social shifts in the concept of identity over the past decade. The notion of a stable identity is questioned as ideas about the fluidity of sexual, cultural and gender identity are discussed, and coverage of identity crises throughout the lifespan demonstrates how identity development now goes beyond the adolescent period. Social influences on identity including the role of new media are considered alongside different influential developmental models, including the work of Erikson and Kegan.

The book is ideal reading for students of adolescent development, identity and developmental psychology.

Intentional Self-Development and Positive Ageing

How Individuals Select and Pursue Life Goals

Bernhard Leipold

Intentional Self-Development and Positive Ageing provides an overview of how individuals intentionally shape their development across the lifespan. By examining general age-related changes and critical life events, the book considers to what extent human development is the aim of the individual's actions or merely a by-product of non-intended circumstances. It explores the adaptive cognitive-motivational processes that generate positive development in adulthood, and leads to a better understanding of the freedom a person has in dealing with challenges and developmental tasks.

Landscapes of Trauma

The Psychology of the Battlefield

Nigel Hunt, University of Nottingham, UK

This fascinating new book explores how the trauma of war is shaped not only by its innate horror but also by the contexts in it is fought, from the cultural and social conventions of the period to the topography of the settings. By revisiting a range of battlefields, Nigel Hunt provides a deeper analysis of how war is experienced and remembered in different eras, moving beyond the clinical concept of PTSD to discuss how trauma can be understood socially and historically, as well through the lens of individual suffering. Integrating trauma studies with historical research and social psychology, this is enlightening work will appeal to readers across psychology and military history.

Perspectives on Social Psychology

A Psychology of Human Being

Wendy Stainton Rogers

This innovative textbook explores core social psychology topics from a new psychological perspective that is concerned with the social and cultural worlds we inhabit. Taking a critical approach, the book explores how qualitative methods and data analysis can be used to examine our behaviour and what it is to be human. The author analyses human communication, agency, and values, in order to go beyond the individualist scientific approach taken by traditional psychology. This innovative textbook offers a fascinating alternative to existing resources, and includes original pedagogical features. It is essential reading

Performing Under Pressure

Psychological Strategies for Sporting Success

Josephine Perry

Drawing on empirical psychological research, Performing Under Pressure provides accessible and practical strategies and techniques for sporting success. Throughout the book five approaches to sporting success (Goals, Preparation, Performance, Self knowledge and Support) are advocated, providing a simple but extensive toolkit for developing and making the most of existing strengths, whilst learning how to overcome common barriers, such as crises of confidence, lack of focus, or fear of failure. The book shows how theory can be applied in practice, making it essential reading for anyone working with those involved in sport, at both amateur and professional level.

Social Psychology

Exploring the Dynamics of Human Experience

Robin R. Vallacher, Florida Atlantic University

This textbook provides an integrative and cumulative framework to provide students with a rich and engaging account of the human social experience. It shows how the field's dizzying, and highly fragmented, array of topics, models, theories and paradigms can be best understood through a coherent conceptual narrative in which topics are presented in careful sequence, with each chapter building on what has already been learned while providing the groundwork for understanding what follows in the next chapter. Covering an enormous range of topics from self-concept to interpersonal relationships, this

The History and Evolution of Psychology

A Philosophical and Biological Perspective

Brian D. Cox, Hofstra University, USA

This book discusses key figures in history in the context of their time, takes students on a carefully-formulated, chronological journey through the build-up of psychology from ancient times to the present, and seeks to draw students into the way science is done, rather than merely presenting them with historical fact. Students will learn not only the 'what', but the 'why' of the history of psychology and will acquire the necessary background historical material to fully understand those concepts. Organized around a series of paradigms, the book seeks to portray psychology as an on-going, evolving process, rather than a theory.

Psychology of Eating

From Biology to Culture to Policy

Emily Splane, Flagler College, Florida, USA and Neil Rowland, University of Florida, USA

This text provides a multi-faceted introduction to the psychology of eating, looking at the biological, genetic, developmental and social determinants of how the human body is constructed to find and assimilate food. It juxtaposes normal eating, eating in environments of food scarcity, and the phenomenon of abnormal eating prevalent in many modern day developed societies. It also considers the role of business and government in creating eating cultures and potentially addressing the issue of abnormal eating. This is essential reading for undergraduate courses in Psychology and other disciplines with a holistic and

Trophy Hunting

A Psychological Perspective

Geoffrey Beattie, Edge Hill University, UK

This book explores the psychology of the trophy hunter from a critical perspective and considers the reasons why some people engage in the controversial activity of hunting and killing often endangered animals for sport. Engaging with recent highly charged debate and examples, the author examines whether there is an evolutionary argument for trophy hunting and the motivation and personality traits that play a part. He makes connections between other indicators of prestige and dominance, showing how trophy hunting is inherently linked to a desire for status. This is fascinating reading for students and academics in psychology, geography, business, environmental studies, and related areas.
